

HOMELESS. Our biggest problems aren't drugs, unemployment or crime - but homeless youth. The disillusioned, homeless youth of today may be drug addicted, unemployed criminals tomorrow.

*What is the value of a society?
To me its values are reflected in how it cares for its youth.*

HOPE. Hope is a manifestation of the negative force; it often fosters unrealistic, unattainable expectations. Hope alludes to divine input, which is not forthcoming. Hope potentially gives rise to lethargy and inertia. Hope, like thoughts & prayers, voids real engagement. A better way to well-deserved peace of mind is trust. Trust in our ability to make decisions with conviction and good judgement will advance us toward our goals.

*Hope may lull us into expecting heavenly intervention and divert
us from reality and rationality.*

*It is best not to hope for gains;
instead we shall trust that our sincere efforts will be rewarded.*

HUMAN. "What is a human being? Objectively, nothing of consequence. Particles of dust, clumps of atoms. Yet, a human being is necessary for the question to exist ... its presence is the most wonderful thing. Questions require minds, minds bring meaning. What is meaning? I don't know, but the universe means something to me. I'm astonished by our existence; two million years ago we were apemen ... now we are spacemen. I don't understand, no one does; but it makes me smile."

*Excerpted from the foreword of the
